ITB and TU Delft received a grant from the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs to organise 3 graduation studio’s on shared Indonesian and Dutch heritage. The goal of the grant is to educate young architects and urban planners how to deal with the development of shared heritage in Indonesia. My participation in the seminar was part of my graduation studio/project and included a field trip to Indonesia, for expanding our understanding and research in the field from October 11th, 2018 to November 6th, 2018. The results of this 3-year investigation will be showcased in an Exhibition at ITB, Bandung in 2020.

Travelling, Culture, Arts & Music: Travelling makes people better in my opinion. I am fascinated by exploring other cultures and their traditions. People can learn a lot more from each other than they do. Additionally, by looking at the people and the reactions to their environment I believe I can become a better architect. The countries that I really want to visit sometime in the near future are Vietnam, Egypt and India.

Environment, Ecology, Climate Change Activist: Architects should play a bigger role in spreading knowledge in terms of climate change and environmental problems to their clients as well as the general public since both its effects and consequences are related to the built environment.
